

Julie Mansfield is a Research Assistant Professor at the Injury Biomechanics Research Center at The Ohio State University. She holds a Bachelor's degree and a Master's degree in Mechanical Engineering and a PhD in Biomedical Engineering. Julie's research focuses on pediatric safety, especially child restraint system performance and usability. Julie works closely with the industry representatives of CChIPS – the Center for Child Injury Prevention Studies.